English

“Step forward and drink. You go now into the realm of the bear. Gather your strength as you pass into the cave of the spirits, for you will need it.”

“The sacred brew will open your mind. What you see in the cave is for you alone. You may ask yourself, ‘is it real?’ Banish this thought! It can kill you, is that real enough for you?”

Go forth. “Show your strength! Triumph over your enemies, and prove that you have the spirit of the bear!”

Disclaimer -- This is a DLC for a companion app for a board game. Not a standalone computer game.

4 one shot adventures "trials" great if you need a session with little commitment. Something that RtL was lacking in so far. Delve you're committing to 6 encounters, and campaigns even more. Good way to showcase the system to new players, or players you won't play with often.

some test plays on my part solo has shown that there are different map layouts in each trial, and they will use expansion tiles. If you dislike the Delve because of the way it rewards rushing through at breakneck speed, you will find options here that do quite the opposite. Trial of the bear is basically horde mode. Trial of the hawk seems more like the delve where it forces you through at break neck speed. Need to experiment more with the other 2, but lion looks like facing off against biggest monsters in your collection, and wolf is something else completely about guiding spirits of ancestors to the spirit realm.

I was really hoping when they leaked that new content was coming that wed get another full campaign for a big box, or possibly a shorter length for a small box expansion. This was still an insta-buy for me. I will continue to buy anything halfway decent, even like this that fills a little niche for different types of play. They released 2 full length campaigns so far so 5 dollars is nothing to ensure continued support for this amazing app that makes descent playable for our groups.
